

Greetings,

As you may be aware, a number of Oregon State University and University of Oregon college students in the past have participated in trips to Shasta Trinity Forest during the month of May.

While these trips are not a recognized or sponsored event by either university, we do know students make their own choice to participate. Our biggest concerns regarding these student weekends is for student safety and well-being. We also are mindful of student activities resulting in negative environmental impacts as has been the case in the past.

Please know that both universities are providing education related to safety, situational awareness and responsibility, and that we have the ability to hold students accountable for certain behaviors while off campus. Should you have concerns about incidents involving students from Oregon State University or University of Oregon while they are visitors to your community, please contact the Dean of Students Office:

Oregon State University, Office of the Dean of Student Life, deanofstudents@oregonstate.edu, 541-737-8748.

Most sincerely,

Susie Brubaker-Cole
Vice Provost for Student Affairs
Oregon State University
